Young You's suspicions against sev-eral fellow countrymen had been aroused and one day he marshalled a number of Chinese neighbors and told the story of his loss, incidentally drop ping a few bints as to whom the finger of suspicion pointed.

The charge was denied, and Young You becoming incensed at the general denial, thereupon declared that he would have the guilty man "prayed to death" by a kahuna.

Representative Kancho was the particular kahuna according to testimony that the Chinese had in mind when he volunteered his dire threats. Dur-ing the rather unique lavestigation pursued by Young You and his hired kahuna, the limbs of the Chinese were felt in order to determine indications of trembling and fear. The pulse of the suspects was also examined for signs of increased ruitation of the heart. The efforts to detect the guilty party were fruitless however and it hen came the turn of the accused
